

GOTTA GET IT UP--This piece of property is being eyeballed by the Martha Lane board as a possible site on which to erect the new campus. Trustees hope it will be an easy pick-up.

Martha Lane institutes local porn institution

by Fernando Smith
News Man About Campus

In a secret meeting last night the Martha Lane Board of Trustees voted to obtain a parcel.

"We have made very definite plans to attain this," related Dr. Fern Headstrong, Martha Lane planning genius. "It is just those fellows in the state capital that don't agree."

"Additional facilities are positively needed," stated Dr. George Fisgrodhu, president of Martha Lane. "What this college really needs is a good two-dollar broom," he added.

Groghound went on to say that although this institute has a decline in enrollment and is facing a number of possible financial cut-backs due to up and coming legislation they can still justify a second campus.

"It won't be a second campus, rather it will be an annexation where we will be able to offer all the popular classes totally independent of Martha Lane but it won't be separated."

"The need is there," proposed a trustee, "according to reports I've been given to read there is a particular need."

"Figuring pathetically," said Headstrong, "if out of every 10 new households we will get 100 college applicants then our enrollment at Martha Lane will double by the year 2000 give or take 30-40 percent."

The board meeting which occurred was a closed meeting and the media was not notified; however, Coyote el reporters were on the scene.

"We regularly inform all media via telex and only those with a 5-digit phone number," commented an anonymous Trustee.

According to ill-informed sources the site which has been chosen by Martha Lane Institute has been distressing to those that are opposed to it. "That is not to say that aren't in favor of it. They just aren't," added the source confidentially. "Of course you realize this is entirely off the record," said the handsome basketball coach whose initials are Q.U.

"All indications from the local newspapers show a dislike in our expansion plans," said President gourdhund. "We must be doing something right," he added with a smile.

"The Faculty supports this concept," a Martha Lane Bureacrat revealed. "They are willing to cut their size in half in order to afford this move."

"As far as I'm concerned," exclaimed boisterous Martha Lane Student Government President Andy Bias, "they can all just kiss my."

COYOTE el

Vol. 11 Litre

MARTHA LANE INSTITUTE for the FINE ARTS (at Bristol)

April 1, 1978

Vice-Prez Rugerski:

The fellow who trampled on the 'toes of tradition'

by Joe Rossi
Editorial Boy and Frat-Guy

Well folks, tradition has been crushed by the iron fist of the fana. Zeal Rugerski, Martha Lane Vice-President in charge of student-teacher affairs.

It seems Rugerski is not content to leave great enough alone, but feels it is his duty to tamper with one of the few real assets this institution has: Its very formidable weekly newspaper, the el DON.

In a statement written in Polish on the south-west wall of the men's faculty restroom, Rugerski stated that "I, as a vice-principal, am guaranteed two inalienable rights. The first is that I don't have to pay no 35 cents when I park at Honer Plaza, and the second is that I get to change the name of the newspaper anytime I want to.

It should be remembered that this is the same Zeal Rugerski who ruined the image of Director of Student Activities Don McPain by dressing up in a coyote suit and making him parade around campus as Coyote Don.

Now all McPain has time to do is sit in his office and howl at his secretaries.

Many people on campus are opposed to the name Coyote Don, claiming it to be grammatically and phonetically incorrect and saying it should be changed to the flashier-sounding Don Coyote.

When asked to comment, Rugerski said that "Don Coyote sounds too much like Don Quixote. Anyone who has seen the play 'Man of LaMancha' knows that Don Quixote was an insane old man. I just don't think it'd reflect too well on our school to have its mascot named after such an ass."

But why should we spit in the face of tradition by changing the name of el DON?

In answer to this question, Rugerski bellowed out the infamous words of David Bowie: "Ch ch ch changes!"

Not wishing to argue with such eloquence, we are giving in to Rugerski's wish.

Forthwith and from now on, the el DON is dead. Long live Coyote el.

Briefs

Research questionnaires requested

Any students who are interested in filling out questionnaires may do so.

An evening with . . .

Martha Lane Theatre Arts presents "An Evening with Bernard Melighen and his vaudevillian mannequins." For those who are planning to attend this cheerful event reservations should be confirmed immediately. Call 541-6064 any weekday that has a "r" in it between 4 a.m. and a prime number.

Film series gone to the birds

Film festival enthusiasts will be dazzled to learn that the Annual Martha Lane Film Festival for Movie Lovers is no longer annual. "So many people are disheartened with the film medium that we have cancelled the series," sobbed Mary Martino, director. The series has been replaced with a sing-along crowd shoot in the east parking lot every spring semester.

THEY STAND ALONE--Don Ut (left) and U.N. Esco (in blue) were recipients of the exclusive and coveted Ezra B. Scumbugger Memorial trophy and posthumous litmus test.

Between the Sheets

Human Fly
Climbs
Humanities
Building

Behind the scenes
in the cafeteria:
What really goes on?

Pg. 7
Pg. 13

Pg. 8
Parking
Problem
Solved:
Baseball Field
Paved Over